ADULT LEARNING CENTRES

An adult learning centre is a community partnership, which provides adult learners who are 19 years of age and older with opportunities to develop employment skills, enhance their academic qualifications and engage in life long learning. The centres or programs offer a variety of Senior 1 to Senior 4 high school credit courses. They enable learners to complete the Mature Student Diploma Program, obtain the necessary courses as a prerequisite for attending post-secondary institutions or become more competitive for new employment opportunities.

In addition to the Senior 1 to Senior 4 credit courses, adult learning centres may provide the following courses or other services:

DUAL CREDIT COURSES

Courses where you can receive credit for both high school and post secondary programs.

PRIOR LEARNING ASSESSMENT AND RECOGNITION (PLAR)

PLAR is a process used to identify, document, assess and recognize skills and knowledge. Learning takes place in many situations including: work, hobbies, family, military, volunteer activities, travel, independent study, formal education, and workplace training. In PLAR, individuals prove learning in a variety of ways.

NC (NON-CREDIT) ACADEMIC

Academic courses that do not count towards a mature student high school diploma such as literacy or adult basic education courses.

NC (NON-CREDIT) VOCATIONAL

Customized or "fee for service" courses linked to business/industry or for general interest purposes such as resume writing, interviewing or career exploration courses.

Program Description:
The Specialty Literacy Project is geared towards teaching mentally disabled adults the skills they require to become independent in their daily living, to have a sense of self-worth, to build their self-esteem and to give them the confidence in the learning process.

There is considerable potential for literacy to become a means for achieving the goals of community integration and increasing independence for adults with mental disability. One of the few reviews on literacy issues and adults with mental disability suggests that literacy is not only a means to increased "competence" in the community. It is also a means of access to experiences of daily life, which many adults have been denied because of the protective nature of the environment in which they have lived.

Program Description:
The program runs 12 months a year and intake is continuous. Applications are received year round. Applicants meet with the staff to explore their academic history and levels. A program of study, opportunities for PLAR, a schedule and a start date are agreed upon. Courses are delivered through labs, workshops and independent study.

A sponsored full-time student will be expected to attend the centre for 30 hours a week and complete between two and three credits in each four-month period. Part-time students and those on flexible schedules are encouraged to budget at least 12 hours each week for their studies and complete between one and two credits in each four-month period. These guidelines will vary from individual to individual.

Services may include assistance with writing resumes, cover letters and preparing for interviews. The Centre is able to support job-seekers network with local employers and develop a job-search action plan.

The Centre is also able to help identify post-secondary education and training options and any prerequisites. Assistance may also be provided to students applying for financial assistance and with budgeting.

Courses include Senior 1-4 core academic courses, computers, keyboarding, accounting, and family studies. See our website for course descriptions and details. Most courses are individualized to meet the needs of learners. The centre also has continuous intake. A computer management system, Odyssey, is used to manage each learner's course.

Learning is self-directed. With the support of teachers and educational assistants, learners establish goals for their progress in courses. Choice is provided through activities, projects, and assessments. Practical and real life projects are woven through courses when and where applicable.

Base line computer training is available and is also an expectation for students at the Centre. The Centre has established partnerships with local business to support learners, promote the Centre and offer training specific to business needs.

Family Literacy Description:
We are a community-based Family Literacy Program incorporating aspects of the Parent Child Mother Goose model. We have extended the Program to include a focus on books. Parents of pre-school children are involved in learning to read children's literature with a focus on interactive strategies to share the books with their children. Our aims and objectives are to enhance the reading, writing and communication growth of our participants by building on the oral language awareness and competency developed via the Mother Goose model. We offer weekly sessions during which parents focus on books, rhymes, songs, and stories with their children and then separate to focus on books and bookmaking while their children simultaneously do activities based on a weekly theme.
